

CASE CRITERIA

THE TOOTH STUDIO
Where every tooth is a work of art

Below are suggested guidelines to assist you, your staff and Tooth Studio Dental Laboratory to meet the needs and expectations of your patient. In order to achieve predictable results, we've found it is important to augment our expertise with clear communication and treatment planning. Proper treatment planning, mouth preparation and accurate impressions combined with our skills will consistently save you time, money and frustration. By following these guidelines we will be able to produce predictable and consistent high quality results, reduced chair time and, ultimately, happier patients.

PLANNING: As your Lab Team Member, we assist in planning by:

1. Consultation – especially helpful with choice of restorative materials
2. Photography – digital images for ease of transmission to and from the lab or Doctor's office
3. Email – Refer to our contact list for specific addresses
4. Sequence of Procedures – simplifies complex cases identifying critical steps of the treatment plan

EFFECTIVE TOOLS OF COMMUNICATION:

1. Diagnostic Wax-Up
2. Facebow – mounted study cast of accepted provisional restorations
3. Pictures – a series of full face, quadrant and occlusal.
4. Proper two/three plane preparation with defined margin
5. Accurate full arch impression (bubble free and defined margins)
6. Clearly written or typed detailed instructions
7. Sufficient schedule time to successfully meet expectations
8. Shades

